

Call for Research Participants

Please Participate and
Make a Difference in Oral Healthcare

Exploring the Relationship Between Oral Function and Nutritional Status

- The Centre for Public Health (CPH) at Queen's University Belfast is looking for adults aged 65+ years to participate in a research study.
- The study will explore the relationship between oral function (including chewing and swallowing) and nutritional status.
- Taking part involves attending an appointment at the CPH (lasting no more than one hour).
- You would provide a blood sample, body measurements, complete some short questionnaires and a 4-day food diary.

We are seeking participants who:

- ✓ Are community-dwelling older adults aged 65 years or older
- ✓ Have all, some or no natural teeth (with or without dentures)
- ✓ Are able to give informed consent

We cannot include participants who:

- ✓ Are receiving active treatment for psychiatric disorders

Please contact Dr Danielle Logan

Email: oralnutrition@qub.ac.uk /Phone: 07385968725

This study has been approved by the Faculty of Medicine, Health and Life Sciences Research Ethics Committee, Queen's University Belfast. Your participation will be kept confidential.